SPIRITUAL GIFTS

JOEL predicted a remarkable outpouring of the spirit in Jerusalem (Joel 2:28, 29; cf. Acts 2:17, 18).

Before the crucifixion, Jesus promised to send the Holy Spirit, the Comforter, to be the helper and guide of his people. This was historically accomplished on the day of Pentecost. The gifts of the Spirit were extended to all Christians. Not only were these conferred, but they were also to be used for the edification of the church and the world.

Find Way to Use X-Ray

In Study of Brain

Basel, Switzerland—A method of investigating the brain by means of X-ray photographs has been perfected by Dr. Max Ludin, director of the Roentgen Institute of the University of Zurich.

Dr. Ludin has been able to locate exactly the position of the tumor by operation much easier.

Air is pumped into the cavity of the brain, where it shows as white patches in the X-ray pictures. If one of the cavities contains a tumor the air cannot penetrate into the cavity and so the white patch does not show.

In making X-ray pictures of the medulla, which is the part between the spinal cord and the brain, a specially prepared oil is used instead of air. This oil is heavier than the spinal fluid which fills the medullary canal, so it flows down, appearing in the picture as a black patch. If there is a tumor in the canal, the air stops at the upper edge of the tumor.

Dr. Ludin is now working with an oil lighter than spinal fluid, by which the tumor is located exactly.

South Sea Islanders

Crave Paper Umbrellas

Peking—An increasing demand for Chinese and Japanese paper umbrellas is reported from the South Sea Islands. The more wealthy inhabitants of the tropical isles seem to prefer the flower umbrellas of Japan, but the common people are buying the more durable oil umbrellas made in China, finding these useful in both rain and shine.

Go to Nashville

"I was to stay there only a week, but just before my departure the heart suddenly left for Nashville, Tenn., where Jessica and I were brought up by their children till we were fourteen years old. Jessica and I were then taken back to Camden, always believing we were brother and sister, though knowing we were adopted."

When the Farneses had moved to Philadelphia, a never known to my real parents were taken to Philadelphia. When the war came I enlisted, though, at seventeen years old. Jessica had meantime been married. Her husband was a pilot of a Standard Oil company plane in South America, but he was killed just a week later, and both the Haris died just after the Armistice.

"We then went to live in Freeport, Me. and Mrs. Begetrum, who were old friends of the Haris, helped with the household and I got odd jobs. Then about a month ago I wrote to Mr. Strickland, asking him to get a job in his silk mill. He happened to know I was an elderly woman who knew the Farneses and Haris in Camden. She knew my real name and she wrote them in Philadelphia. A few days later a Mrs. Sue Potter, my real sister, wrote me and asked me to come and visit her home in North Philadelphia. I was awfully surprised, of course, but I told Jessica and together we motored down to Mrs. Potter's home.

Hart described the reception he received from his family, which included another sister, Mrs. Mary Rose, and his brothers, George and Edward. He said that Jessica grew more and more uncomfortable during the welcome and finally flamed "dead away." He said he tried to comfort her, but he couldn't help making a fuss over his new family.

"Josh" he said, "blood will tell you. I just couldn't help liking them, and even on the way back Jessica wouldn't sit beside me once."

The week after his return from Philadelphia Jessica disappeared. Then she sent him a card from Freeport, saying that she was going to Geneva, N. Y. Hart characterized this as a bluff, because he said he was sure she knew no one there. Hart said he would change his name to Farnes. When asked about his future plans, he said he didn't know.

"I'm going in search of Jessica, if she doesn't show up soon. Meanwhile I'll stick to my job."

Shanghai—The Nationalist government has decreed that mothers of marriageable daughters are entitled to no more than $150 from future son-in-law.

If the girl is a widow the limit is $100. Nationalist authorities took action after examining evidence of a $100 payment by a man to a girl.
